Grace Heineman

" I attribute part of my tenacity and creativity to my elementary years at St. Bernadette" School."

Grace Heineman is a second year student at the University of Texas at Austin where she is pursuing degrees in mathematics and economics. There, she participates in student government where she consistently advocates for the rights of students with disabilities and a number of philanthropic organizations, all while juggling her internship and work in the department of physics. She is fluent in Spanish and every week volunteers with children who are struggling with English literacy. In addition, she is the publicity coordinator at the University Catholic Center.
